Good Samaritan Overdose Cheat Sheet

State: United States

What this usually means

This state has overdose Good Samaritan protections in many real-world situations when someone seeks emergency medical help in good faith.

Caution

Coverage varies by circumstances and legal details. This is legal safety information, not legal advice.

Common protections to know

- Calling 911 in good faith for a suspected overdose.
- Remaining with the person and cooperating with emergency responders.
- Some possession-related exposure may be limited in covered scenarios.

If you call 911

Say: "Possible overdose, medical emergency." Share exact location, breathing status, and whether naloxone was given.

Emergency: Call 911 | Poison Control: 1-800-222-1222

Source: https://lawatlas.org/

Last reviewed: 2026-05-04 | Status: general

Not legal advice. Laws can change. Verify current state policy before relying on this card.